Science, Technology, and Environmental Policy

December 1, Historic Whittemore House, Washington, DC

Presentation

“Disasters: Community Health Resilience Planning, Capacity Building and Response”

Response to natural and human made disasters has significantly evolved since hurricane Katrina and September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks. These catastrophes highlighted the vulnerability and shortcomings for long-term recovery planning and response. Current approach to community health resilience and enacted policies markedly improved survival and outcomes

An expert panel will discuss policies and practices addressing knowledge gaps based on lessons learned and promoting community health resilience.

Moderator

Arnauld Nicogossian, George Mason University
